General Information

Short summary

A French woman entrepreneur had a solid experience in a large luxury house as a leather goods maker. In 2019, she started her own activity on the basis of eco-responsibility, as designer and producer of leather goods and jewellery for men and women. She is currently looking for new suppliers of cotton-lined cork, vegetal fibers or cellulose in rolls in several colours. Manufacturers of such types of quality and natural materials, are sought as long-term partners under supplier agreements.

Full description

French designer in committed leather goods and respectful of the environment, her clients have a sensitivity for aesthetic and practical aspects, as well as an eco-responsible approach in their consumption of goods. They are looking for original and quality articles and they are sometimes in demand of tailor-made. They appreciate the approach and are interested in innovative, sustainable materials, in a framework that also relates to the Social and Solidarity Economy.

The collections are intended for men and women, the pieces are unique or in small series. As part of the manufacturing process, the designer pays the greatest attention to the choice of materials, assembly, stitching and finishes of each element. Finally, it uses the slightest drop to find solutions and present a variety of items from bag to accessory for sustainable production. A decorative range also completes the collection. All items are produced in his workshop in France.

The French SME is looking for alternatives to animal leather, which must also be resistant and eco-responsible without petroleum products (no polyester) and be biodegradable:

- Cotton-lined cork (mainly)
- Vegetable fiber
- Cellulose

Materials must be in rolls in small quantities and in several colours.

The French SME is seeking long-term partners providing such eco-friendly products under supplier agreements.
